

ther of crime; and it is the true road to poverty. We are all so constituted that our minds must be employed. Persons brought up in idleness and luxury never acquire bad habits which they ever throw off through life and which aid premature death. The associations in life are various, and all ought to be employed in some useful calling, and to faithfully discharge the duties of that calling.

